Plantation Island Resort celebrates Month of Happiness

Fijian people are known worldwide for their happiness, their friendliness, their “Bula Spirit”. To celebrate the Fijian Bula Spirit, Plantation Island Resort celebrates March as the Month of Happiness each year.

Plantation Island Resort has been providing happy memories for guests for over 50 years. The Staff and Management would like to enrich the experiences of all guests arriving at the Resort from 1 – 31 March 2020 by offering everyone a free upgrade to the next room category.

“Fijian people are the happiest people on earth and we want to share our happiness with all our guests” states Akshay Singh, Director of Sales & Marketing of Plantation Island Resort. “The free upgrades initiative in March is just a small gesture to say thank you for choosing Fiji, thank you for choosing Plantation Island Resort”.

The free upgrade is subject to availability upon arrival and every guest will receive it, irrespective of the channel that they made their booking through.

About Plantation Island Resort

The three-star resort prides itself on appealing to families with kids of all ages, with an extensive array of activities on offer. Younger children can enjoy the Coconut Kids' Club where they can get stuck into activities such as coconut boat making and crab racing. The Laird Club caters to teens with a range of high-energy pursuits including kayaking, water polo and touch rugby. If that wasn't enough, the resort also offers bike riding, a water park and two playgrounds.

There are plenty of reasons why this resort is a hit with the rest of the family. Conveniently located 16 km from Fiji's main airport, Nadi International, the resort is set on the idyllic Malolo Lailai Island, nestling among acres of tropical gardens, palm trees, pristine beaches and a peaceful lagoon.

While the kids enjoy the numerous activities on offer, parents can take it easy thanks to the Resort's nanny service, allowing them precious time to relax in one of the resort's many pools or bars, or simply watching the sun go down.

Accommodation is versatile, with a choice of staying close to the beach, within the gardens or close to the poolside. Each room or bure (traditional Fijian cabin) is suitable for up to two adults and three children, with a number of bures accommodating up to six people.

With a choice of two restaurants and a snack bar offering a range of delicious food from buffets and traditional dishes through to burgers and chips, there are tasty options to suit the whole family. Great quality food goes hand in hand with value for money at Plantation Island, as the Resort even offers free meals for the under 13s.
